big cotton operators, announced on Sunday, was discussed with interest at the Cotton Exchage yesterday. The failure was due to the operations of Julius Junge who had been carrying a large interest options for a syndicate of Southern and Liverpool operators. Mr. Junge was in this city last week conducting the liquidation of his contracts here, where he was believed to be long of over 200,000 bales, and he has returned to Galvaston with all his New-York accounts closed out. The losses by the failure will fall heaviest on operators in Liverpool, in Galvaston and in New-Orleans.

Mr. Junge is reported to have cleared a handsome sum through hear operations in coffee by the break in that commodity last menth. The buil party which he led are believed to have begun builing cotton as early as last February, and in April they made large profits. But their venture in builing August cotton from 9.80to 11.53 accepts was unsuccessful, the ceasation of export demands at the high prices and the favorable prospects of the new crop encouraging the bears to sell more than the syndicate could take. Fraders here, however, think that Mr. Junge might have been successful if he had confined his efforts here instead of trying to corner the Liverpool market.

YEAR FOR DAIRYMEN. "This has been a prosperous year for dairy farmers," said Congressman Pidcock of New-Jersey as he took off his Panama stockyard hat on a North River forryboat yesterday and wiped his perspiring forehead with a red am the largest dair, man in the State of New-Jersey and probably the largest in the United States. I own about 800 cows and run a creamery. In my whole experience I never knew the business to be so profitable to dairy reporter, to whom the New-Jersey statesman was talkling.

"Milk always goes up in summer," replied the Congressman. "That is due to the scarcity and the increased demand. I say scarcity, when as a matter of fact the receipts are about 18,000 cans a day, or heavier than was ever known before. But owing to the intense heat a great deal of this milk sours before it reaches the customers. These thunder storms sometimes sour whole train-loads. When I say 'scarcity' I refer to good sweet milk. Then the summer demand due to picnice, excusions, etc., where they must have leccream and cake, helps to stiffen prices. These causes have sent prices kiting this season, and the dairymen reap the benefit.
Besides they have the benefit of good crops this year.
The grass was never thicker or more nutritious than in

The Rev. Mother Mary Francis Clare, the Nun of Kenmare, at the head of the order, has established a summer and convalescent bome for working cirls on the Palisades at Englewood, where about sixty are now enjoying the fresh air and beautiful scenery, and the loving aid of Sister Clare. Some are receiving instruction and training for useful employment, some are gaining recovery from sickness, some finding needed rest from labor in city stores or workshops, while many obtain help in securing employment for which they are fitted. Working girls from the city can there spend their Sundays in peace and in recovery of strength, returning in season for their labors on Monday. The work already done by this comparatively new sisterhood in this country is worthy of high praise; it has placed in goo! situations over 2,500 girls, has added many to recover from sickness or to escape lives of temptation; has taken charge of many orphan children, and has made itself knewn by extensive personal visitation to the sick poor of Jersey City. Newark, and other places. The ceremony on Monday was attended by many friends of the sisterhood and of the novices and la les taking the vell, and by others who, though not of the Catholic Church, have interest in the worthy work which the Sisters of Frace have undertaken.
